
Simon Hardie, CEO & Founder, findexable

Simon is co-founder and CEO of Findexable – the digital platform for benchmarking fintech innovation globally, and home to the Global Fintech Index.

findexable's platform makes it easier to benchmark fintech activity, powers unmoderated, real-time insight on global fintech ecosystems and helps organisations & investors understand the ingredients of fintech success.

Simon has two decades of experience supporting the growth of fintech ecosystems and building meaningful connections between investors, institutions, and innovators through his work with global intelligence brands including The Economist, Euromoney Institutional Investor Thomson Reuters, and Global Data.

He was previously a director of financial services events and data business Global Data PLC before setting up findexable in response to growing customer demand for an easier, more efficient means of gathering insight and analytics.